2. The Trustee issued a "Notice of Trustee's Determination of Claim," denying the SIPC claim of each Objector. Each Notice of Trustee's Determination states: "Based on a review of available books and records of BLMIS by the Trustee's staff, you did not have an account with BLMIS. Because you did not have an account, you are not a customer of BLMIS under SIPA as that term is defined at 15 U.S.C. § 7811l.” As set forth below, the Trustee’s determination is incorrect as a matter of law and fact.

3. In relevant part, and with emphasis added, 15 U.S.C. § 7811l defines “customer” as:

Any person (including any person with whom the debtor deals as principal or agent) who has a claim on account of securities received, acquired, or held by the debtor in the course of its business as a broker or dealer from or for the securities accounts of such person for safekeeping, with a view to sale, to cover consummated sales, pursuant to purchases, as collateral security, or for purposes of effecting transfer. The term “customer” includes any person who has a claim against the debtor arising out of sales or conversions of such securities, and any person who has deposited cash with the debtor for the purpose of purchasing securities...

(Emphasis added.)

4. As such, the statute includes “any person with whom the debtor deals as principal or agent” as a “customer.” The Objectors invested in Bernard L. Madoff Investment Securities LLC (“BLMIS”) through feeder funds that were agents of BLMIS. It is through that agency that Objectors invested their money with BLMIS.

5. Alternatively, these feeder funds functioned as agents for the securities account of underlying investors such as the Objectors. The Objectors are therefore the “such person” on whose behalf the feeder fund dealt with BLMIS and BLMIS held the securities accounts of the Objectors for safekeeping.

6. It is clear, based on the face of the statute, that Objectors do not need to have a direct relationship with Madoff to be considered a “customer.” In this regard, SIPA states that a “customer” “includes any person who has a claim against the debtor arising out of sales or conversions of such securities, and any person who has deposited cash with the debtor for the purpose of purchasing securities.” (Emphasis added.) Use of the word “includes” indicates that the definition that follows is not exclusive. Rather, the statute provides an indication of the types of persons meant to be included. The only requirements for “customer” status are that (i) the claim against the debtor arose out of sales or conversion of securities and (ii) the customer made deposits with the fiduciary of cash or securities. Here, both prongs are satisfied.

7. Additionally, SIPA does not mandate that the monies or securities received by Madoff were received “directly” from the customer. This is evidenced by 15 U.S.C. § 78fff-3(a)(5) which states:

no advance shall be made by SIPC to the trustee to pay or otherwise satisfy any net equity claim of any customer who is a broker or dealer or bank, other than to the extent that it shall be established to the satisfaction of the trustee, from the books and records of the debtor or from the books and records of a broker or dealer or bank, or otherwise, that the net equity claims of such broker or dealer or bank against the debtor arose out of transactions for customers of such broker or dealer or bank..., in which event each such customer of such broker or dealer or bank shall be deemed a separate customer of the debtor.

(Emphasis added.)

8. The Objectors “entrusted” cash or securities to the broker-dealer debtor, albeit indirectly, and therefore, under the holding of a number of court cases, the Objectors are “customers.” See, e.g., SIPC v. Executive Secs. Corp., 556 F.2d 98, 99 (2d Cir. 1977). Here, Objectors, through an agent, entrusted cash and/or securities to Madoff and therefore are “customer[s].”

9. Furthermore, whether a claimant is a “customer” does not depend upon whom the Objectors handed their capital or checks payable, or even where the Objectors initially deposited their funds. Focht v. Heebner (In re Old Naples Secs., Inc.), 223 F.3d 1296, 1302-1303 (11th Cir. 2000). Instead, the issue depends upon whether there was “actual receipt, acquisition or possession of the property of a claimant by the brokerage firm under liquidation.” Id. Here, the Objectors can show that there was “actual receipt, acquisition or possession” of their property by BLMIS. Thus, Objectors are “customers” within the plain reading of 15 U.S.C. § 78lll.

10. Denying the Objectors “customer” status is inconsistent with the legislative intent embodied by SIPA, and therefore, equitable considerations support granting the Objectors “customer” status. For example, upon the signing of SIPA on December 30, 1970, President Richard Nixon stated that “just as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation protects the user of banking services from the danger of bank failure, so will the Securities Investor Protection Corporation [“SIPC”] protect the user of investment services from the danger of brokerage firm failure.”¹ SIPC provides protection to prevent the user from suffering loss because “of an operating failure in the mechanisms of the marketplace.”²

To provide industry oversight, SIPA contains a “specific statutory mandate to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission to promulgate rules and regulations with respect to the financial responsibility and related practices of brokers.”³ President Richard Nixon emphasized, while those problems are being defined and resolved, “[p]rotection of the customer is essential” in that “the user of investment services, the small investor, [must] be protected.”⁴

Although the structure of investment services has substantially changed since 1970, the user of investment services remains the same. That is, the user is the Objector that suffered loss as a result of the “operating failure in the mechanisms of the marketplace” known as the Madoff fraud. This remains true regardless of whether the Objector chose to access the marketplace through direct or indirect means.

11. These Objectors join in the objections of all other claimants who have an indirect investment in Madoff through feeder funds and reserve all rights with respect to the Claims including the right to amend, revise or supplement this Objection and to the extent they deem necessary, file a supplemental memorandum of law. Any failure to object on a procedural or substantive ground shall not be deemed a waiver of any such rights.
